

Having a good grasp of alphabetical order is important for categorising words, writing glossaries and using dictionaries for example.

To play this game:

- Choose a topic. It could be breakfast cereals, book characters, fruit, clothes or anything that is part of a larger group.
- Now start at A (or Z if you feel particularly adventurous) and think of something from your chosen group that starts with each letter.
- Here's an example for 'fruit': A (apple), B (banana), C (cherry) etc.
- Work your way through the alphabet. Don't worry if you have to miss out some letters. You can always go back to them.

Top tip... Alternatively, if you go out for a walk or a drive, look out for road names, shop signs or road signs that match the letters of the alphabet.
